

Calles' Renunciation Of Presidential Candidacy Will Not Halt Revolution, Say Rebel Leaders

Baldwin Expected To Resign As Premier

LONDON, December 8.—(By the United Press)—Three cheers for the new prime minister.
An immense crowd shouted this greeting to the leader of the Labor party, when he arrived in London this afternoon from Wales. Thousands were gathered at the railway station to cheer the man considered largely responsible for Labor's tremendous gain for his political party.

LONDON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Egerton Wake, chief agent of the Labor party, officially announced today that there would be no Liberal-Labor coalition.

LONDON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The Evening Standard today says Premier Baldwin will resign on Monday and that he is likely to recommend as his successor, J. Ramsay MacDonald, who is head of the parliamentary Labor party. It is leader of His Majesty's opposition in the house of commons. There is no indication, however, of any authority for the newspaper's statement.

LONDON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—What Primo Minister Baldwin will do, now that his party has no majority over the combined Laborite and Liberal opposition, and how the administration of the country will be carried on, are the questions which the public, the press, the politicians and His Majesty's ministers are trying to find satisfactory answers.
Since the premier returned to London from the scene of his personal triumph at Bowdler, he has kept close to the house of commons. The Conservative party has made a public statement.
One of the favorite guesses—and the Daily Express states it as a fact—is that Mr. Baldwin will resign both the prime ministership, and the leadership of the Conservatives. But such action would not settle the problem. (Continued on Page Three)

In Mexican Revolt

Revolutionary fires are smoldering in Mexico again. General Plutarco Calles (left), President Obregon's choice for his successor, is the center of contention. Calles, minister of interior in Obregon's cabinet, is regarded as semi-socialist. He is a firm believer in the policy, "Mexico for Mexicans." Adolfo de la Huerta, formerly the other member of the "big three" in the Obregon administration, is leading the movement against Calles and Obregon. He is being aided by Flores Villareal and Manuel Madero (right). De la Huerta is considered friendly to foreign interests.

Woman Bandit Holds Up Bank

FOSTORIA, Ohio, December 8.—(By the United Press)—A woman and her help up two clerks in the Ohio Savings and Loan Bank here and escaped with all the money in sight, approximately $1,000.

Carl Smith, manager of the institution, had not arrived at the office and the two girls, Mabel Blackford and Edith Allen, were alone in the office when the gun-woman entered.

Miss Blackford said the woman was neatly dressed, wore bobbed hair and a large brown coat. She appeared to be between 35 and 40 years old.

Covering the two clerks with a revolver, the woman demanded that they shall out.

Then she ordered them to face the wall.
"Now don't move for forty minutes," she said. The gun-woman stuffed the money into the pockets of her big coat and walked out.

Passersby said they saw a woman answering to the description of the gun-woman run down an alley near where the hold-up was staged.

The girl clerks were still standing faces to the wall when Carl Smith arrived at the bank a few minutes later.

He said he believed the same woman tried to hold him up several weeks ago, but that he talked her out of it.

12 Year Old Kidnapped Child, Held Captive A Week, Returns

CHICAGO, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Twelve-year-old Rose Borth, kidnapped a week ago, was returned to her parents last night and told a tale of having been drugged and kept in a squalid room by Harry Williams, a railroad switchman. Doctors said the girl had not been harmed. Her return was as mysterious as her disappearance last Sunday night after she had been sent to a grocery.

A man's voice on the telephone informed a neighbor of the Borths that Rose would be found at the end of a certain street car line. Officers hastened to the spot and Rose told them her abductor had placed her on the car and told her he would call her parents.

She was unable to recall clearly what happened after she started on the Sunday evening saying she had been sleeping nearly all the time after drinking a liquid Williams prepared and forced her to take.

Occupants of the boarding house where the girl said she had been held captive, said there had been no indication the child had been confined in the room. Williams had been at home all week, they said, complaining of illness. Rose said that when the landlady would come to Williams' room he would force her to hide under the bed or in a closet, threatening death if she disobeyed.

She said Williams fed her only canned goods and the room was littered with cans and papers. The police are seeking Williams.

Flashy Dances Held In Church

NEW YORK, December 8.—(By the United Press)—Shapely legs bared to the hips were revealed by feminine dancers at the celebration of the Feast of St. Nicholas at St. Mark's R. C. Church, which began yesterday, and continued this afternoon and evening. Dr. Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's, urged his parishioners to come to the celebration in the spirit of youth.

"Put in a pinch of the satanalia," said the rector, and today he said: "That's the way I like to see formality broken down."

"We have used dancing here a great deal to indicate the great things of life," Dr. Guthrie said just before the final dance. We want dancing with a meaning in it, and here we have it."

And then the lights went out. A spot light was focused on an opening in the curtain and four young girls appeared.

They were clad in pale green and blue tunics.

In the first pose the tunics were drawn aside, revealing a shapely left leg bared to the hips. The second pose revealed a similar right and the cry arose: "On with the dance."

The celebration proceeded today and the zodiacal frolic was one of the main drawing cards.

Two Killed, One Wounded, In Restaurant Riot

CHICAGO, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Two men were shot and killed and a detective sergeant wounded slightly early today by a man identified by the police as John Sheehy, alias George Thomas, alias John Sheehy, when he became involved in the crush of a new $100,000 Japanese room caused an order of cracked ice to be delayed.

Sheehy was shot twice and probably fatally wounded by the companion of the detective he shot.

Henry Bing, a waiter, and Leopold Gull, steward of the fashionable Rensselaire Cafe, were the men killed.

Hundreds of diners and dancers were thrown into a panic by the shooting. Police reserves were summoned to restore order when excited patrons stormed the doors and windows in an attempt to leave.

According to witnesses questioned by the police, Sheehy accompanied by two women, was intoxicated and became angered when Bing refused to bring him the ice he demanded. When he went to the service bar to get it himself, Gull attempted to restrain him and Sheehy displayed a revolver, firing at Gull when the latter grasped a bottle. As police men entered the cafe, Sheehy shot Bing and exchanged shots with them. He continued shooting until he was seriously wounded and his pistol was empty.

At a hospital surgeons said he would die.

2 Attempts Made To Wreck L. & N. Train

CINCINNATI, O., December 8.—Derailed last night of Louisville and Nashville Railroad passenger train No. 6 was the result of a second attempt within a few hours to wreck a passenger train on that road between Latonia and Independence, Ky., a distance of only a few miles.

Failure in the first instance was due to the timely discovery of a displaced rail by a track walker who flagged an accommodation train barely in time to prevent it running into the ditch.

The second attempt, however, resulted in the derailling of the locomotive, tender and combination car of No. 6, north bound from Louisville, and the slight injury of a baggage man and a fireman. The passengers were unhurt.

After the wreck, it was found that spikes had been drawn and a rail entirely removed, despite the fact that armed guards had been patrolling the right of way for several miles following the earlier unsuccessful attempt.

Railroad officials declared they were at a loss to account for the train wrecking attempts, and were without a clue to the identity of the perpetrator.

As a precautionary measure, orders were issued to detain all trains on the Louisville division over the Southern Railroad from La Grange, Ky., to Cincinnati.

A steamer and four sailing vessels believed to be part of the fleet of fifteen craft reported earlier in the week off Highlands, now are at anchor off this famous seaside resort.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., December 8.—(By the United Press)—The headless body of Mrs. Ora Thompson, wife of E. Ray Thompson, wealthy Milwaukee business man, was found in a shallow ditch in a ravine 25 miles north of here today. Thompson is held by the police pending investigation. The head is still missing. Sheriff Westthal, who had charge of the hunt for the woman, said the head had been hacked off with a blunt instrument. The body was nude and buried in a shallow grave. ### Seven Perish In Hazard, Kentucky Mine Explosion

HAZARD, KY., December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Seven miners are dead today and six others are injured, two of the latter possibly fatally, as a result of an explosion of dust in a mine of the Blackhawk Coal Company on Carr's Fork, twelve miles from here, late yesterday. Dust in the mine is believed to have ignited from a faulty "shot" when explosives, were, discharged by the miners to break down coal.

The dead, all apparently instantly killed, include one white man and six negroes.

The explosion was said to have occurred about 3,000 feet from the entrance to the mine, but with such force that the office of John Lewis, mine foreman at the mouth of the pit, was wrecked. Mr. Lewis, who was nearby, organized a rescue party and directed the bringing out of the dead and injured.

Twenty-five to one hundred are believed employed in the mine, it was said, but at the time of the explosion those men who were working overtime, were in the pit.

Failed to Elect Cyclops

YOUNGSTOWN, O., December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Difficulty in electing a local man cyclops of the Mahoning county Klan under its new charter caused postponement of a scheduled discussion of a slate for city appointive offices at a meeting of the Klan in a downtown auditorium here last night. It was learned today.

NEW YORK, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The Dutch schooner Zeehoed, was seized off Fire Island today by the coast guard cutter Lexington, and her captain and crew were held for violation of the prohibition laws. In her hold was found 2,500 cases of champagne and other liquors valued at more than $200,000.

Congress Is Filling Slates

WASHINGTON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The task of completing committee slates was pressed today by senate and house leaders in an effort to have full membership assignments ready by the time congress convenes Monday after its week-end recess.

In the senate, however, it appeared doubtful how the Republican committee of committees would be able to complete its assignments to the joint vacancies in time for a party approval conference before the senate meets. This raised the possibility that senate Democrats would defer their fight for re-organization of the senate until after the committee assignments have received its approval.

On the house side, the Republican committee on committees which yesterday decided to give the Democrats increased representation on all standing committees except the rules committee, in continuing its slate making, took up assignments to the rules and steering committees. The Democrats of the ways and means committee, appointed yesterday after the closing of the majority committee ratification of its first meeting today for the assignment of committee membership.

Germany Does Not Need Charity; Help To Be Given On Business Basis

WASHINGTON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Germany is not in need of charity, according to information reaching President Coolidge through official channels and he feels that any aid given that nation by the United States should be arranged on a business basis.

Appropriation of funds for relief in Germany, as proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, it is indicated, will not be favored by the president.

Proposals that the reparation commission compromise the floating of a loan by Germany to finance the purchase of foodstuffs, however, will receive the moral support of the American government, it was said at the White House yesterday after a conference between Mr. Coolidge and Ambassador Wedfield.

Eugene Victor Nelson, of Chicago, another defendant in the kidnapping case, received a three months' sentence but the court took into consideration the fact that he also had been in jail since August and because of this he was immediately set free.

Griffis and Nelson were each sentenced to pay a fine of two trillion paper marks for having brought an automobile into Germany unlawfully. According to the German officials, if the court had delayed until today the sentencing of the defendant, the fine would have been ten thousand gold marks each under new regulations effective this morning. Maxwell K. Moorehead, American counsel at Stuttgart, announced that he had received several anonymous contributions of money in the last few days, $200 of which had been given to Lena Rupp, the Elberbach girl who was shot in the hand in 1920 in the course of the attempt of American army men to arrest Bergdall in Baden. Franklin Rupp had been promised reimbursement for her doctor bills by the army of occupation authorities at Coblenz, but nothing was ever paid.

Griffis faces eighteen months' imprisonment without any outside privileges unless his American friends are able to induce the German officials to grant him a parole after a few weeks. The court yesterday sentenced Griffis to a year and nine months, but three months' time was later deducted in view of the fact that he had been in jail since last August.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Harding Memorial Week will be started tomorrow with memorial services in churches throughout the country, and ceremonies also will be held at sea. The Memorial Association announced today, on naval and merchant vessels.

Meetings to pay tribute to the late president and consider the association's plans to provide a permanent Harding tomb, preserve his home at Marion, Ohio, as a shrine, and endow diplomacy and factions of government in his name, will be held during the week, it was said, by numerous social, civic, religious and fraternal organizations.

Bonus Row Thorn In Side Of Politicians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Many members of Congress are seeking the advice of President Coolidge on the question of a bonus for the disabled ex-service men.

There are a few, of course, who voted for the measure last year, but the President this time, but the principal problem is that of the member of congress who wants to stand by the President and at the same time win re-election. Fear of the "charlatan" legion's activity in the primaries and in the elections has been at the bottom of it all.

One member of congress said in a discussion of the bonus: "That's all very true, Mr. President, but you don't vote in my district."

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am 12 years of age and weigh 70 pounds. I am 36 inches tall and when I got weighed at school they told me that I was nine pounds overweight. Dolly, I am always having a cold and cough and my mother says that keeps my weight down. I always wear a cap and coat, Dolly, do you know of anything that I could eat so that I can gain these ten pounds that I am supposed to have? Dolly, my big sister thinks she is boss but I think differently.

NELSON.
Very few people measure up to the standard in weights and measures, so I would not let a few pounds more or less worry me. According to my table of weights and measures you are about only five pounds under weight and if you are not built for a heavy weight, you are about the right size. If you will drink plenty of milk and eat good nourishing food I think you will get up to where you want to be in no time. Your mother should take you to a physician and have your nose, throat and lungs examined and see if you need attention. Perhaps if you had your tonsils removed you would not have so many colds.

Dear Dolly—We are two girls of 20 and we would like for you to tell us what is the matter with us. Dolly, we have been going with a couple of men but they do not mean anything to our young lives, but if we do not see them every evening or so we have the blues. Dolly, don't you think that if we loved these boys we would know it? Now Dolly, please tell us what causes us to want to see these men when we think that we do not care anything about them? What is our true feeling towards them?

KENTUCKY READERS.
You think about these boys because they are the only ones who seem interested in you, and because you are at an age when you can't think of anything else but boys. If they are nice lads and you want some one to bear you around you might as well keep on the good side of them until some one else appears on the scene.
Dear Dolly—Will you please print a way to corn beef as soon as possible. I use about a five-pound piece of corn beef with water enough to cover the meat well. In this water I dissolve seven teaspoons of salt, one and one-half teaspoons of salt peter. Let stand four or five days, turning meat once each day. Use the same water to boil in. Boil gently three or more hours. I see no reason why it could not be re-heated in the same water. Any that is left over can be put back in the water for slicing or for hash. Another recipe calls for seven tablespoons salt, three tablespoons brown sugar, two tablespoons salt peter, five pounds of any good cut of beef, boiled water, "enough" to cover. Let stand five or six days, then cook. To make corned beef when you have only fresh beef, put a piece of smoked ham in with the beef and boil together. It makes it have the red color and the same taste as the corned beef. A half pound of ham is enough for two pounds of beef.

Dear Dolly—Will you please give me a receipt for chocolate drops with plain white filling; also cherry filling.

M. G.
First of all you should make a fondant, and if you don't know how to do that you might use this easy recipe: White of one egg, confectioners' sugar and flavoring. Beat the egg very stiff; stir in as much confectioners' sugar as the egg will hold; flavor and mold into small balls. If you want to make more candy than this recipe calls for, double or triple the ingredients. To make chocolate drops roll fondant into balls; dip them in melted chocolate and stand them to dry on waxed paper. The necessary utensils are a wire fork and a very small double boiler. The chocolate when melted should come nearly to the top of the boiler. Melt the chocolate; cool to about 80 degrees; add a drop of fondant into the chocolate; with a fork push it below the surface; remove carefully with the fork and place on waxed paper. I have no recipe for cherry filled chocolates, but you can make a good substitute by wrapping fondant around a Maraschino cherry, before dipping it in the chocolate.

Dear Dolly—I notice another letter in your column about renters and landlords and the conditions of houses and what the tenants get for their money. I would like to tell the world that we are getting for our money. We have been living in three rooms of a tenement house for the past two months and the paper is hanging from the walls and the landlord will not fix it. They say they won't fix the paper because our three children make so much noise. But Dolly, they don't make half as much noise as the men in the house of the person whom I think was complaining about my children. They come in all hours and make all kind of noises.

A FAIR-WEATHER RIDDLE

"It's daylight, folks, awake!"

THE next riddle that the Riddle Lady asked in Riddle Land was this. See if you can guess it as quickly as Nick did.

"There is a chap I know well, Who travels through the skies, He sails along from light to dark, And he is wondrous wise."

"He is so wise he's lost his hair, From thinking this and that, As he rolls 'round up in the air, And he is bold and fat."

"Bold and fat he is, sir, Yes, he is fat and bold. Another Humpty Dumpty, I've often heard him called."

"When he gets up he calls down, 'It's daylight, folks, awake! The day's begun, roll out of bed, Get dressed, for goodness sake!'"

"And feed your pigs and chickens, And milk your brindle cow, And give your horse a bag of oats, Ere he goes out to plow."

"And all you birds wake, too, And open your sleepy eyes, And all the bugs and beetles, And flowers and butterflies."

"And all you birds wake, too, And open your sleepy eyes, And all the bugs and beetles, And flowers and butterflies."

"Who is it?" asked the Riddle Lady. "The sun!" cried Nick.

"I was just going to say that," said Slow, "but I thought I'd wait awhile." "Dear, dear, dear!" said the Riddle Lady. "It's just fellows like you and your brother, Sleepy Head, that make Mister Sun cross. Why do you always wait awhile?"

"I don't know," answered Slow. "I guess it's just a habit." "That's what I think," declared the Riddle Lady. "And if Nick doesn't care, I'm going to give you the prize, for he doesn't need it. It's an alarm clock."

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — IN THE TOWER OF TICKS

As the clock face walked up the ladder and slid into place on the front of the clock, it shouted, "Hey, Ticky, I'm all ready now. You can call the hour hand and the minute hand." And, in just a minute, the minute hand scrambled up and hopped on the face. Then Jack looked for the hour hand.

It was nowhere to be seen, so he asked Ticky about it. "Oh," replied the ruler of the Tower of Ticks, "we'll have to wait a while. You see it takes an hour for the hour hand to get here." And while they were waiting, the gray old pendulum crawled into the lower part of the clock.

"Somebody hand me on the hook," shouted Mr. Pendulum. "I can't quite reach it." So Jack rushed forth and put Mr. Pendulum into place. Then Mr. Pendulum said, "Here's where I get a fine ride, back and forth." But he failed to start to swing. Something was wrong with the big clock. (Continued.)

Shoots Mother, Takes Own Life

SHARON, PA., Dec. 8. — Charles Swogger, aged 40, member of a prominent family of breeders of thoroughbred Holstein cattle, shot and probably fatally wounded his mother, Mrs. Oliver Swogger, aged 60, at their home at Lacawanna township, seven miles east of here last night and then committed suicide.

After shooting his mother with a shotgun through the kitchen window, Swogger went into a barn, tied one end of a rope around his neck and the other to a rafter in the hayloft and then shot himself. Mrs. Swogger was shot through the neck and in the back of the head.

The tragedy was the culmination of a quarrel between the mother and son earlier in the day, according to reports to the authorities.

The Swoggers are said to be among the wealthiest cattle breeders in Pennsylvania. Their Holstein cattle have won many prizes in this and other states.

HOUSE PASSES BILL AGAINST KLAN MASK

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Dec. 8. — The senate anti-Ku Klux Klan bill prohibiting the wearing of masks but minus provisions regarded by its supporters as necessary to make the act sufficiently drastic, was passed today by the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature.

The action brought to a close the controversy which raged for weeks in both houses of the assembly during which the Ku Klux Klan and its activities and former Gov. J. C. Walton's spectacular opposition to the organization formed the chief issues.

With ten days to act on the measure, Gov. C. E. Trapp today declined to indicate whether he would approve or reject it. The executive's attitude toward such legislation never has been officially made known, but those close to him declare he favored stringent regulatory powers for any act directed against secret organizations.

"ROCK OF AGES" PREFERABLE TO "AGES OF ROCKS"

NEW YORK, December 8.—William Jennings Bryan, three candidate for the presidency, today told Baptist Fundamentalists he preferred Christianity to geology.

"It," he said, "we have come to the stage at which we must decide between geology and Christianity. I think it is better that we know the rock of ages than the ages of rocks."

Mr. Bryan said he would rather have his boy unable to read and write and honest, than an inmate of a penitentiary and a scholar.

"When I first opposed evolution," he continued, "I was told by a minister that a thinking man couldn't agree with me. I said to him that only 2 per cent of the population were college graduates and that there was 98 per cent who still had souls."

Found, Is Belief Of N. Y. Police

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Police today indicated that the search for the murderer of Irving Pickelky, four years old, whose mutilated body was found in a cellar near Big Grand street home, had ended with the arrest of Nathan Schatzky. The man was arrested on complaint of two women who said he was trying to entice Philip Wachel, five years old, to the roof of the tenement in which he lives. Schatzky, the police said, told them he had killed the Pickelky boy. The boy disappeared from his home on October 26, and after several days of searching police expressed the belief that he had been kidnapped by a determined person. On November 20, two gas repairmen found the body in a cellar near the Pickelky home.

ABE MARTIN On Bill's Return to Germany

QUIET INDIGNATION

The current issue of the Weekly Star Horn carries the folio's mellow and rough shed editorial on the possibility of Bill Hohenzollern returning to Germany. Who can't look back to the beginning of the world war, an the invasion of Belgium, an the shakin' of the Lusitania, an all the ridicule that was poked at our note writin' who can't recall what a time we had tryin' to be neutral an' then, when we had 't finally bump in' the war, who among us kin forget the awful three years of 'countin' an' knittin' an' half-cooked combread, an' no sugar, an' savin' an' givin' an' havin' 't listen 't four-minute speeches, an' shakin' an' worryin' an' watchin' the newspapers an' weepin' who can't recall all the pictures of devastated France? Who's forgotten that the German hordes laid down just as our soldier boys got 't goin' good, an' before the terrible conflagration had even singed the fatherland? An' who kin forget how the eyes of the world were centered on Versailles, an' what a once echoed an' resounded around the world when it was rumored that the United States was for a soft peace? We don't care 't disavow the league of nations an' what might have been, or politics, or the disposal of army supplies, or the purchase of hospital sites, or all the ugly suspicions an' easily investigations as a result of our mixin' in the war, but we do like to remember when we was all united givin' our time an' treasure an' sons 't save the Anglo-Saxon race from destruction. An' we'd like to know what this country thinks of the ex-kaiser shakin' 't standin' of an' gatherin' up his trappings an' speakin' back in Germany, 't celebrated ex-kaiser who's directly responsible for pluggin' the whole world in the worst war in all history, who's directly an' solely responsible for nine million deaths. BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Hubert Stane serves a term in prison for forgery. He goes to the rescue of Helen Yardley when her canoe drifts into dangerous waters. Together they start to walk the trail to the camp of Helen's uncle, a governor of the Hudson Bay Company. They flee on a raft from a forest fire and settle in a deserted cabin. Indians attack the cabin. Helen is abducted and Stane is seemingly dead. Bernard, a trapper, finds Stane and rescues him. Together they find Helen's abductors. Gerald Ainley, in love with Helen, shoots her captors and rescues the girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"You stan' up now, mees." She swayed a little as she did so, and the man stretched a quick hand to steady her.

"Vait min'!" he said, "zee seek-ness it feel pass."

It passed quicker than the man knew, and as the man had moved, bringing his face to the light, Helen used the opportunity to survey the man behind the mitted hand which she had lifted to her head. He was, she saw, a half-breed of evil, pecked, marked countenance, with cruel eyes. Who he was she had not the slightest notion, but curiosity was strong within her, and as she lowered her hand, she waited for him to speak again.

"Ve vait here, little tamee—une hour, den, maybe tree, zee doggie fire. But, you veel not run away. Dat vaire fool ting to do. Zee wood ettes so vast, an' zee fire an' cat."

He moved towards the fire as if certain that she would follow, and after one glance into the deep shadows of the forest, she did so. She seated herself on a log which had been placed for her convenience, accepted some fried moose-meat and unsweetened tea, while the other two men by the fire, both Indians, smoked steadily, without bestowing upon her a single glance whilst she ate. When she had finished she pushed the tin plate from her, and looked at the half-breed, who had seated himself a yard or so away from her.

"That man who was with me in the cabin, he—"

"Sacree!" cried the half-breed in a sudden burst of fury. "Dat man he then her hand slipped from the pistol.

THEY SELECTED 300 "BEAUTIFUL GIRLS"

And No Man Blushes Because It Was All Serious Business

Setting about to choose the 300 most beautiful girls in motion pictures would be a staggering task. But members of the committee who chose that number of beauties for "Poor Men's Wives," a Preferred Picture which opens at the Eastland Theatre Monday, were not in the least daunted.

For weeks before the actual start of the contest, the industry was combed thoroughly for all of the available beauties not under contract. Then came the contest, and for days the entire staff of Schullberg cameramen ground ceaselessly on contestant after contestant, while the studio overflowed with anxious beauties.

The committee, composed of R. P. Schullberg, the producer of "Poor Men's Wives," Gasnier, the director of the feature, Barbara La Marr, Betty Brant, David Butler, members of the staff, and Eve Unitt, scenario chief of the Schullberg forces, watched the tests for an entire day, and after careful conference, announced the lucky winners.

The winners were awarded an opportunity to appear in the great ball-room series of "Poor Men's Wives," which are said to be among the most elaborate and beautiful ever filmed.

Broadening of Trade On Curb

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—There was a general boom leading to trading in New York Curb Exchange the past week when, with the increased activity, many stocks developed pronounced strength and a large number advanced to new highs for the trading. EXOTIC BEAUTY. To look at her you'd think her name was Dolores Casanova or something like that. But it's Helen Ferguson, an American girl, whose Spanish type of beauty has attracted the attention of artists throughout the country.

ART AWARDS go to him, Ting Pao Yang, a Chinese student of the School of Fine Arts of the University of Pennsylvania, received first prize in both problems of the recent architectural contest conducted by the Bronx Arts of New York for students all over the country.

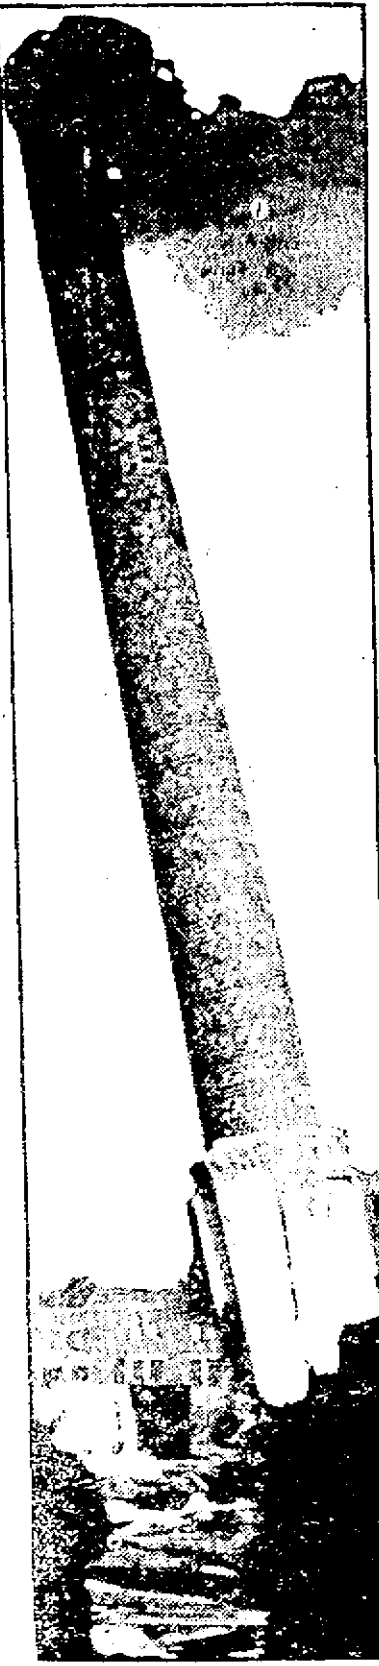

JOHN AND JERRY LION are their names. This picture of them was taken just after they had arrived in San Francisco from Los Angeles, chaperoned by their mistress, Mrs. Charles Gay, of the latter city. They were accompanied by their mother, but she refused to be photographed, being upset after the journey.

HIG GUNS OF UNCLE SAM'S GREATEST DREADNOUGHT, the Colorado. These half a hundred jolly tars don't begin to cover the monstrous cannon on this fighting giant of the seas. The Colorado is the youngest battleship in the navy, having been commissioned at Camden, N. J., Aug. 30. Her crew, needless to say, is quite proud of her.

PUTTING UP A MAN OF STRAW

THE Gallipolis Tribune resurrects the old saw: "All whiskey is good; some is better than others," apparently for the mere delight of bowling it over.

Going back of pre-prohibition days, it says all saloons and all whiskey were always bad and the "first class" saloon, where only the best liquors were sold, was a false alarm, a dark delusion and a mere myth. Thence proceeding it says all liquor was bad. The profession that choice brands were manufactured and sold was a false pretense, unquestionably in so far as the selling was concerned, and it proves its case by digging up and bringing to light an almost forgotten government report. This report was made by government secret service men directly charged to investigate the quality of liquors dispensed over bars of reputations of varying shades. The conclusion thereof is the judges, statesmen, politicians and gilded youths that croaked their elbows over the famous old St. Nicholas bar, in Cincinnati, drank exactly the same sort of liquor that the roustabouts fired themselves to gore and murder in the levee dives. The only difference was that down on the levee five cents was charged for a glass brimming over, while in the St. Nicholas, the traveler from up the river got "two fingers" of exactly the same stuff for 25 cents.

That may be all true; coming from such a veracious source and acknowledged authority we, at least, haven't the front to question it. The only thing we would propose in the light of more modern experiments is a change in the old saw to go: "All liquor is bad, only some is worse than others."

Even this is not proposed of our own knowledge and experience. We are merely converging into form the plaints that reputed experts are continually pouring into our open and capacious ear.

SQUARE TO THE POINT

THE press of the country receives President Coolidge's first message to congress quite approvingly. Almost unanimously it is regarded as safe and sane. It deals solely with the common place, and there is little of claptrap in it.

There can be no complaint that it dodges or muddles any matter with which it treats; indeed, it is almost brutal in its stark simplicity and lack of argument or profession. Its whole spirit seems to be built on the single idea of take it or leave it. The country will not quarrel with him, however, for that. It is such a relief to have a president simply state what he is for and what he is against. As a rule it will approve him, whether in the affirmative or the negative.

'Tis a pity then altogether that he should mar a document so distinctly his own by bringing in even brief balderdash about sacredly following the principles of his predecessor and a few words on bringing spirituality into the nation's attitude.

Now, what did we tell you about this being the finest winter climate on earth!

Much ado is being made by some papers, because a prominent Columbus attorney, "a professor", and an individual in whom religious people and uplift associations imposed much confidence, has gone wrong, as has the money of his trusting co-workers. No argument in that against religion, best brief in the world for it. As long as the man followed his professions, he was all right. He fell when he no longer practiced them. If he were a scoundrel from the start religion must be a mighty thick coat that it could help him to conceal his depravity for so long.

The election returns from England show free trade is a long ways from being dead, as was so gleefully mourned in this country.

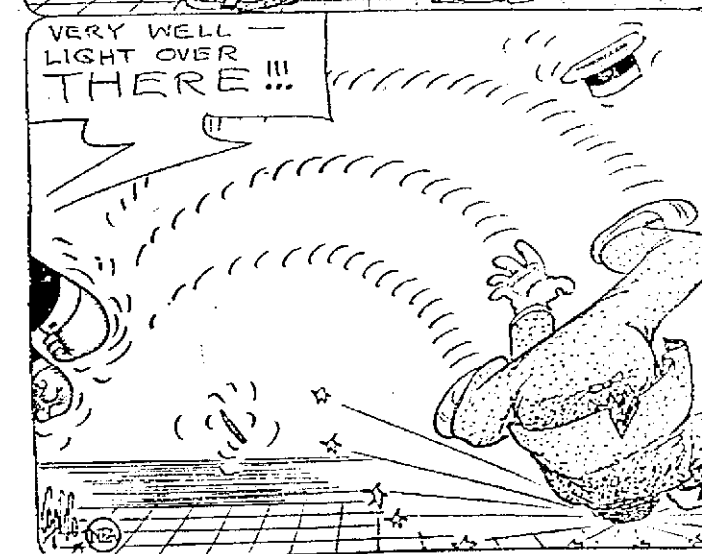

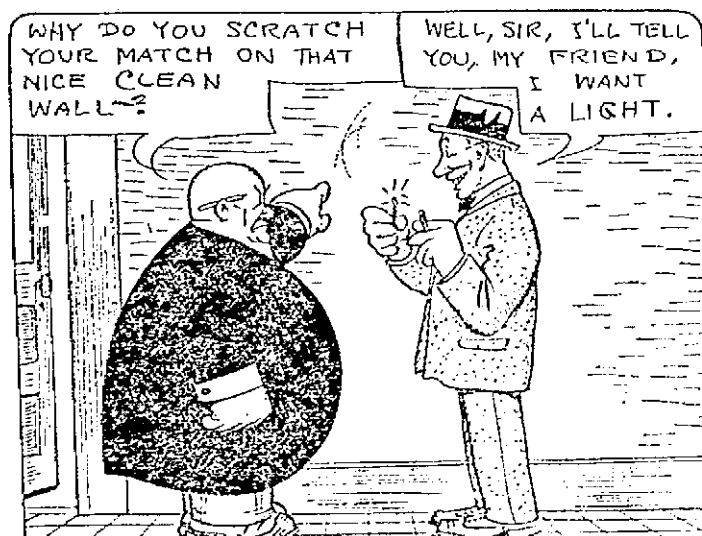

Banditry appears not to be only a profitable profession, but an easy one. Look at that lone highwayman, who walked into a Norfolk and Western car and nonchalantly tossed a safe, containing $8,000, overboard, to be picked up later.

Automobiles killed, last year, 11,666 persons. Not less, but more, since the government statistics, that record this total, are made up from only 85 percent of the population. Some of the states do not keep statistics of the sort, so no certain figures can be given for them. But it is a frightful total, even at the official figures. Twelve persons out of every 100,000 coming to violent and untimely end, through the carelessness or recklessness of themselves or others.

Personally we do not know the new publishers of the Marietta Register, until lately the Register-Leader, but we congratulate them heartily on the distinct change for the better they have made in that venerable publication, and are glad to see evidence in its well laden advertising columns that they are receiving proper encouragement in their efforts.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. G. MCINTYRE

(Special Correspondence)

MEXICO CITY, December 8.—The night life of Mexico City is of the sordid variety. The well-bred Mexican rarely goes to public entertainments. The many American jazz bands here are playing to rows of empty tables. After 10 o'clock the streets of Mexico City are as deserted as those of London.

Last night I went out to dip into the wickedness of the night life. I visited Marina's, which is reputed to be one of the largest and finest bachelors in the world. It was after midnight and outside the street was filled with waiting automobiles and taxis.

The entrance is through great sliding barn-like doors manipulated by an ancient crane. The reception room was large and brilliantly lighted. The waiters were in evening dress and all wore their hair bobbed—American fashion. A few had dipped their locks in henna.

The most appalling thing was their youth. There was a girl of 13 and quite a number 15 years old. The oldest was not more than 20. There were 100 housed there. Back of the reception room was a magnificent court yard with beautiful walks of flagging and gravel.

Fountains scattered. There were benches—the perfume of flowers and now and then the tinkle of a Spanish guitar. The court occupies more than a full city block of space. It is terraced and dotted with blue shrubbery. Back of the court is a dance hall with an American jazz orchestra.

It was a strange mixture of beauty and hideous vice. One saw little drunkenness. Marina is a hard-faced woman with a hawk like nose. Dissipation had left the indelible scar. She took a great pride in her profession.

Mexico City forbids tourists to picture her poverty. The police will stop the snapping of cameras and rapid motion pictures and nearly every photo matter is opened by postal inspectors before it crosses the border.

It is not all singular here. There are vivid impressions of great beauty—stately domes, battered walls, curious convents and monasteries, volcanoes with eternal snows, pale-faced Indians gilding by tin canes, ox-carts, Aztec pottery, flower markets and tiled fountains. Indeed there are moments of a world in crises of lovelessness. Mexico's wonderful old civilization is unchanged by men and politics. At the Xochimilco floating gardens one may buy a basket of pumpkins for a few pennies. A canoe load of gardenias was offered us for 15 cents.

The traffic policemen dress in white uniforms and smoke cigarettes on duty. They turn a sign reading "Alto" to stop, and "Adelante" to move. One chauffeur violated a traffic ordinance in a congested district.

trick. The officer hopped on the running board and directed us to move up a side street. He and the chauffeur had an animated discussion. It wound up by the policeman shaking hands with him. Indeed they grew so affectionate I thought they were going to embrace. I think the driver slipped him a coin.

Knowing my fondness for dogs, a friend sent a street entertainer around to my hotel with his pack and they performed their tricks on the sidewalk while I looked on from a balcony window. The trainer was a ragged little urchin. All his dogs were in costume. They turned somersaults, walked on front and hind legs and ripped merrily at their work. Mexico City streets are filled with dogs that rove about un-leashed and unmuzzled.

We dined tonight in a typical Mexican cafe, where only Mexican dishes are served. Our companion was a young Yaqui Indian boy. He is now an expert photographer for an American film concern and speaks perfect English. Tomorrow afternoon we go to see the bull fight. I am in hopes they will call it off.

THE SPIRIT FEELS (Baltimore Sun)

The spirit feels so much the body knows; The spirit answers to the body's blows; The spirit flinches as the flesh that flinches tight; From all the shadow, at the general fight.

The spirit answers to the wondrous day; And sings responsive to the happier lay; Of bloom and beauty—for the spirit feels; As doth the body—and the spirit kneels!

Yea, at the altar of all-changing life; The pain, the peace, the laughter or the strife; The spirit conquers all the flesh may know— Because the spirit also feels the blow!

Great Expectations

Little Harold had just returned from a trip with his parents. Somewhere during the journey he had picked up some highly decorative phrases which he proceeded to "reg out" on his small sister. She was very properly shocked.

"Harold!" she exclaimed. "You'll never go to Heaven if you use such naughty words."

"Well," replied Harold resignedly. "I've just been in New York, Boston, Chicago and Atlantic City. Gosh! A fellow can't expect to go everywhere, can he?"

Polling Place Principles

While the woman's vote is confidently expected to — and probably will — elect up politics, it must be admitted that there are times when the temptations, increased by a lifetime of bargain hunting, prove almost irresistible.

A man at the last election was attempting to sell his vote, but the woman candidate refused firmly to be a party to bribery and corruption.

"No, sir," she said. "I will not give you a dollar for it. It is not worth it."

"Take it for ninety cents, lady," urged the man.

"Why do you say that before?" she asked. But then honor triumphed. "No," she continued. "No. Not even if you offered to vote twice for a dollar seventy-five."

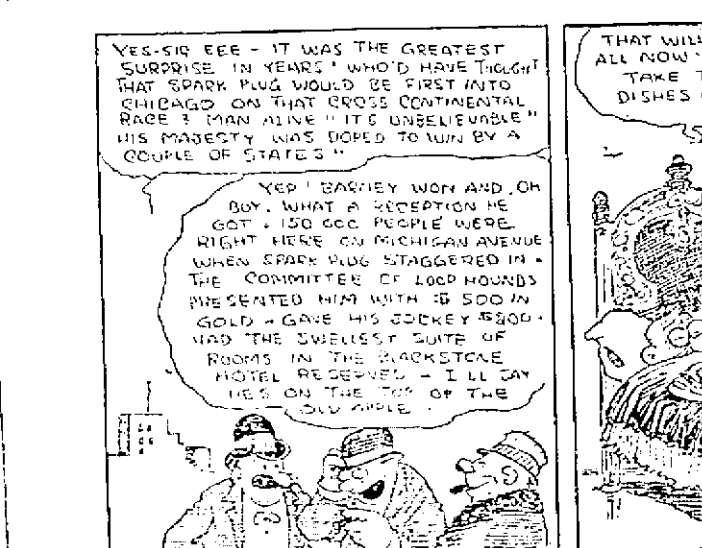

Unfavorable Odds

Casper: "I never go to the bank on Saturdays."

Kelly: "An' if why not?"

Casper: "Sure, an' th' sign on th' door says 'It's only nice to twelve I'll get me money.'"

The Other Car

"But the Boils-Boast auto people guarantee their car for life," objected a prospective motor purchaser to a salesman for the Flyer Five.

"I know they do," he replied, calmly. "But our car is guaranteed for a whole year."

Unreasonable

Mother—How many times have I told you not to play with that horrid Baxter boy?

Aggrieved Willie—What do you think I am, any way, ma—an adding machine?

Run Down

Hubb—Haven't I always given you my salary check on the first of every month?

Wife—Yes, but you never told me you got paid on the first and the fifteenth, you embezzler!

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

Comparative Wealth

(By Berton Braley)

PERCY HOWELLS is richer'n me. He sure is lucky, all right, 'cause he has got shin-guards an' a football suit.

An' a regular college ball to boot. But when he gets in a football scrimmage I carry the ball much farther'n him!

PERCY HOWELLS looks pretty slick

With hockey skates an' a hockey stick. While all I got is a stick I cut. From a hickory tree, an' some old skates—buck!

His chance of winnin' is mighty slim. For I play hockey much better'n him!

PERCY HOWELLS has got a set

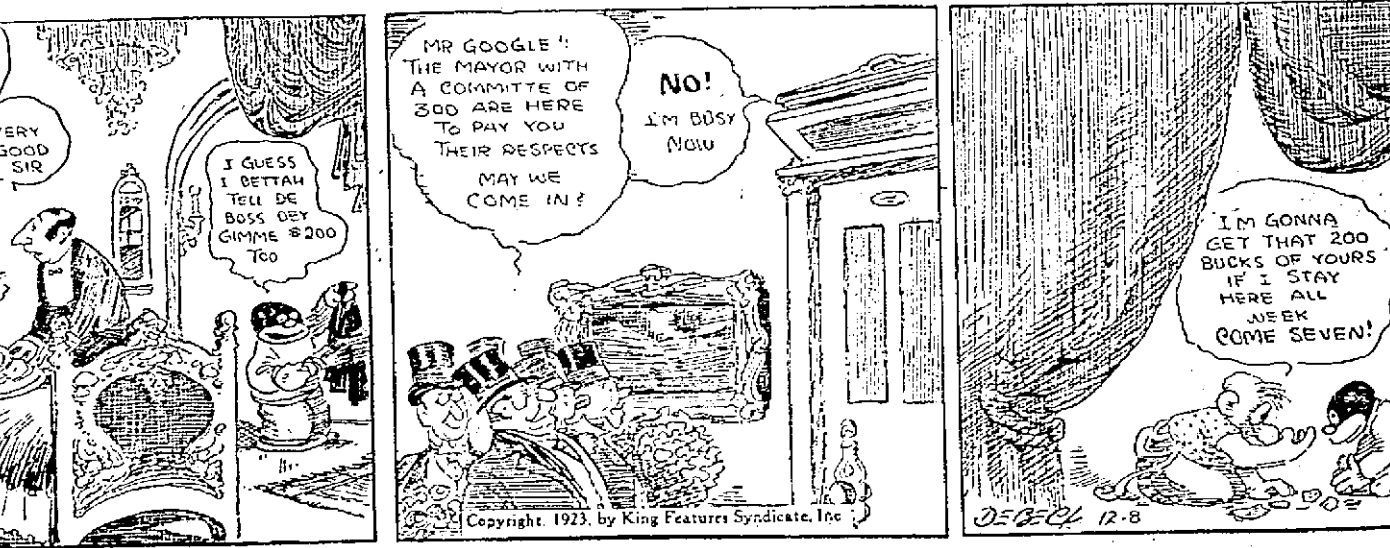

Of boxin' gloves that are fine, you bet. An' he's no slouch, he can use 'em, too.

He's pretty nifty, I'm tellin' you. There's lots of fellers that he can trim. But I can hammer the block off him!

PERCY HOWELLS has lots of stuff

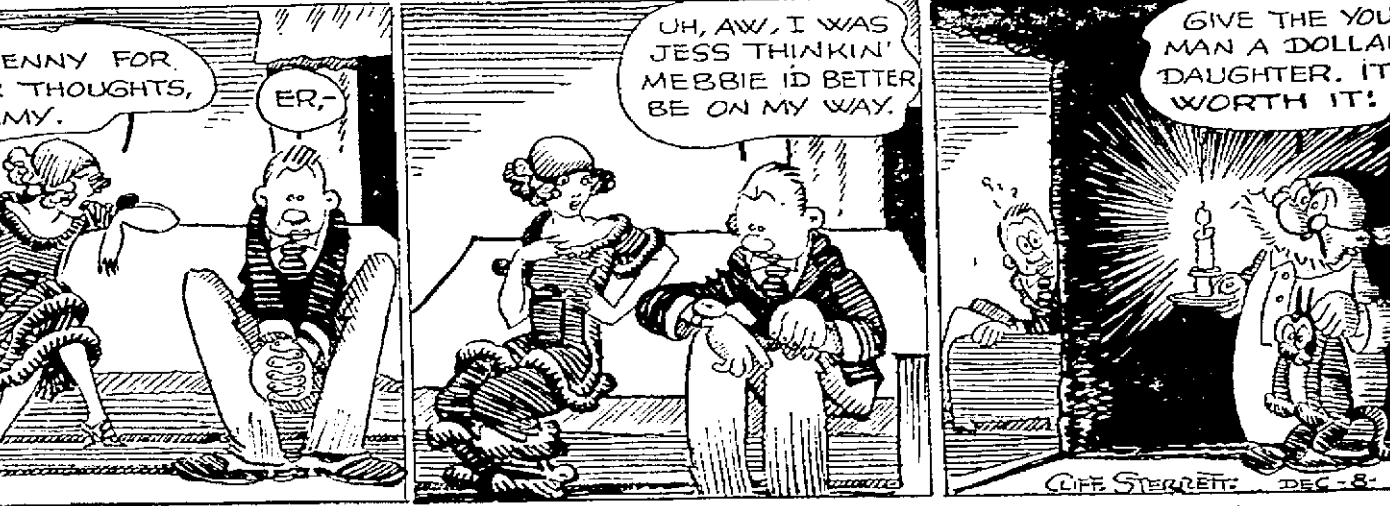

I'd like to have, an' that's true enough; His father's rich an' his mother's swell. But my folks suit me mighty well. An' though my outfit of things is slob, I'd rather be me, myself, than him! (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service, Inc.)
